A child, cute look and happy accompanying his or her parents is adored and noticed by all, but a child somewhat not at par with the societal norms of good looks, is not only ignored by all but also found verbally or physically abused at many instances. As a part of a responsible and civilized society we human beings must try to bring smiles on faces of such child!!

This is a story about Sindhi (not real name) a 13 years old boy, spotted by a SOCH staff. The boy was sleeping alone on platform No 1 at Bhubaneswar Railway station. His was ill and his condition was not good. When SOCH staff approached Sindhi, he felt nervous and due to which he was unable to communicate his situation.

In the absence of any clues about his parents or any other relatives, the SOCH staff decided to bring Sindhi to SOCH shelter.

In the shelter, Sindhi took his bath and had some food. Meanwhile, it was observed that he was not interacting with others and was sitting alone. After a long counseling the child revealed his mother's name i.e. Usha rani, who is a house wife. After continuous counseling it was found that the child had some psychological disorder and needed medical attention. So, SOCH referred the child to child line for further care and protection on the same day.

Just like Sindhi there are many other children who need attention, support and love from the society. As human beings we are morally obliged to help such innocent boys and girls and safeguard the future of our country!!

During the counseling session he said that he belongs to a poor family- his father has a small saloon while his mother is a house wife. Besides, he has two elder sisters and one elder brother. Somehow, Biswajeet managed to secure for himself a job at Puri and was paid Rs-2000/- per month. But he was not satisfied with his work and rather wanted to return back to his home. But constrained by the financial limitations they could not go further in the search for their son, becoming highly despondent. The SOCH staff advised his mother not to scold or beat the child as he is obedient and advised her to put the child back in school so that he can continue with his studies. Finally the child was happily reunited with his family on 26th July 2014.

Most importantly, it made the SOCH people equally happy that they could restore happiness in the minds of those who are kept grounded by poverty and other problems. But when in the first and second follow up time the staff didn't contacted his parents because of some network problem.
